'But the naughty, little snowflakes didn’t mind a word she said, Each tried to clamber faster than his fellow just ahead; They thought that they’d be back in time enough to go to bed.'

Why do you think that the snowflakes did not listen to their mother?

This is all about looking for clues in the text and trying to think about how you might feel if someone warned you not to do something.

I think that the snowflakes didn’t listen because they thought they knew better and were caught up in the fun of the race.

Iggy’s Top Tip: Try to add the linking word ‘because’ to your answer.
